Year 6 Revision Guides and Workbooks

Dear Y6 Parents,

The time has come to begin to think about the Year 6 National Curriculum Tests which take place in the week beginning May 12th this year. While it is important to get the right balance in preparing your child for the testing week, a little and often approach to revision in advance of the tests is often very useful.

There are various revision guides and workbooks available for parents to purchase to assist their children's preparation. The range of Rising Stars "Achieve" guides are simple to follow and have clear, simple explanations of concepts for children to understand. The guides are available on amazon and other websites: just search Rising Stars Achieve for the full range of options.

It is advisable for children to spend an additional 15 minutes each weekday working with these books to consolidate and reinforce the key concepts of the learning they have done in class. It will also help boost your child's confidence in working independently. We will talk to the children about how best to use the revision guides and workbooks and are happy to answer any queries that you may have. One of the biggest challenges that Year 6 find about secondary school is homework! Getting them into the habit of doing something every night is a really good way of helping to prepare them for this.

 We are also recommending that children in Year 6 prioritise the Doodle English app at home, when playing on the doodle learning platforms. A little and often approach to the range of Doodle Learning apps will of course be beneficial; at this point, however, regular interaction with the key grammatical concepts will be of the greatest benefit in the run-in to SATs week. **

A list of the key range of Rising Star books can be found overleaf, along with which are generally most useful. If you have any questions about which books to buy for your child, do pop in for a quick chat at your convenience.

Yours sincerely

Daniel Taylor
